Aging Gracefully~

At some point in our lives, menopause will strike and wreak havoc on our skin. But did you know a women's body begins to produce lower levels of hormones during her 30's? With the loss of estrogen comes declining levels of collagen and elastin, dull, dry skin, slower cellular turnover, changes in texture and pore size, fine lines and wrinkles. Fortunately, developing skincare technology can offer women relief from symptoms that damage their skin. Here are a few guidelines for preventing and reversing hormonal aging...

Clock Stopping Treatments

1. Consider a treatment that stimulates cell turnover like Microdermabrasion and chemical peels.
2. Regular Facials can help combat dryness and help stimulate circulation. They are also great for reducing stress!
3. Try "Light Therapy" like our LIGHTWAVE skin rejuvenating treatment. Great for stimulating collagen and elastin.

Clock Stopping Homecare Products

1. Peptides. Try Image's The Max, a multi-peptide product that stimulates collagen and elastin.
2. Retinols. Try Image's Total Retinol A or Intaglio's Vitamin A Emollient. Both improve the skin's firmness and actually increases cellular growth.
3. Moisturizer. The number one skin problem associated with menopause is dehydration. Choose an emollient moisturizer with vitamins C and E and other natural oils. Or boost any moisturizer with Images's Total Pure Hyaluronic Acid which helps hydrate and smooth the skin.
